Corn The Remedy.

It is announced that six million acres of wheat have been killed in the wheat growing region of the United States. That means nearly 100,000,000 bushels less of food supply and we are raising none to much now.
Breadstuffs are getting out of reach for more than moderate consumption and such a decrease means still higher prices. We here in the South, have our remedy and luckily we have plenty of time in which to apply it. That great decrease in wheat supply ought to be made up by a greater increase in corn supply. The man who raises corn for sale this year will find an easy market and a good price for it. Consumers of wheat bread by the thousands will have to use more of cornbread than ever before. Who can say that it is not a good and healthy substitute.
